A formative, developmental approach that has been proven to yield big benefits in developing teaching.

The direct observation of teaching has for too long been associated with performance management alone, judging the quality of teaching when it has a vital role to play in developing and improving it too. This practical one-day course will give you a key insight into how observations can be used developmentally by managers and colleagues to improve the teaching of maths and English – both when delivered in standalone lessons and when embedded into vocational learning.

FIND OUT MORE
For hosting enquiries, call our delivery partner Creative Education on 020 8253 8238.
Course outcomes

- Identify the sector specific essential maths and English skills that maths, English Language and vocational teachers need to focus on
- Explore and critique various theories of lesson observation and relate them to improving outcomes for maths and English learners
- Identify how to use lessons observations to give supportive and effective feedback on how to improve outcomes for learners in maths and English
- Create a sustainable, collaborative and expansive learning environment

Target audience

This course is aimed at managers of English, maths and vocational learning across organisations that are looking to improve the quality of learning in their organisation and develop a culture of open and reflective practice.

Course structure

The aim is to enable you to develop a culture of open, reflective practice in your organisation encouraging staff to be more adventurous in their teaching style and use of resources.

The course consists of a one day face-to-face session followed by 10 weeks of online support to help you get new structures and expectations established in your organisation.

HOST AN EVENT
Hosting is great value and allows you to train 12 or more delegates for the single price of £600.

To find out more about hosting, go to creativeeducation.co.uk/blog/etf and complete the form or call 020 8253 8238.

ATTEND AN EXTERNAL EVENT
If you don't have enough delegates to host your own event you can still book on at the ETF-subsidised price of £100.

Visit booking.etfoundation.co.uk/course/details/14 to book your place.